OUR MISSION

We welcome everyone with inclusive experiences that spark curiosity and foster community

It is with great pride and gratitude that I present The Newark Museum of Art (NMOA) 2023 Annual Report.

The astonishing results in this report reflect investments from individuals, families, artists, foundations, community partners and government agencies in the transformative power of creativity. The Museum's team is determined to keep NMOA at its leading edge through fiscal and operational stability and through our enduring commitment to celebrate Newark and share narratives that have not been heard.

NMOA's promise to engage was recently recognized by Architectural Digest and The New York Times for the dramatic reinvention of The Ballantine House as an exploration of race and economics in our history and today. That major renovation was made possible through the hard work of our team and through the trust you have placed in our capacity to lead.

Together we can create a more equitable future. I am honored to work alongside you to transform generosity into lasting, powerful change.

Linda C. Harrison
DIRECTOR AND CEO

Exhibiting our

Worlds

The Newark Museum of Art presented new exhibitions and reimagined collection galleries that share narratives rarely featured in museums. Exhibitions that opened in 2023 were years in the making, carefully researched, and created by our interdisciplinary teams, with support from members and friends like you.

In March 2023 NMOA unveiled a reimagined Seeing America: 18th & 19th Century the first major reinstallation of the historical galleries since 2001 (Thank you Institute of Museum and Library Services). To enable us to look directly at historic conflicts together, the galleries combine contemporary artists of color, community voices, and new commissions with historic works to interrogate enslavement, the politics of representation, and the erasure of Black and Indigenous histories.

Eight interconnected galleries, eighty artworks and stunning site-specific installations challenge conventional notions of chronology, race, class, and artistic production. They offer an honest examination of what has long been absent on museum walls.

NMOA is among 3% of U.S. museums to earn rigorous national accreditation

Adama Delphine Fawundu

“The Newark Museum of Art was the ideal museum for me to have a solo exhibition. The rich and expansive collection of the Arts of Global Africa was very useful for my research. . .learned a great deal about the life and practice of the Sierra Leonean modern artist Olayinka Burney-Nicol. I was amazed by how much our works were connected, it made perfect sense to be in an artistic conversation with Olayinka’s works. The Newark Museum of Art is also truly a museum for the community. As a former public school teacher, it warms my heart every time I see a school group engaging in the works. This is such a dynamic and important place.”

Adama Delphine Fawundu

NMOA was one of earliest institutions to collect contemporary African art and that commitment endures. In April 2023 we celebrated the fourth exhibition in our Global Contemporary series showcasing new work by living artists in dialogue with the Museum’s collections. In Adama Delphine Fawundu: In the Spirit of Àṣẹ, the photographer and visual artist celebrates the complexity of the African diaspora and ancestral memory with 17 new works. She proposes alternative and sustainable futures. Fawundu also engaged in public programming, building on her deep relationship with the Newark Community.

Every year artworks from NMOA's exceptional global collection are sought by peer museums from around the world. 2023 was especially robust with major loans to 15 leading institutions in the U.S. and abroad.

For each loan, massive logistics are planned meticulously years in advance to ensure the careful crating and transport of the art. A trained courier accompanies each piece, traveling with it from the Museum until it is installed in its temporary home.

One of NMOA's most celebrated paintings depicting an extinct movie palace traveled across the river to the Whitney's exhibition Edward Hopper's New York. The masterwork was heralded by visitors and noted by critics in Forbes, The New Yorker, and The New York Times.

For Barbara Chase-Riboud: Infinite Folds at the Serpentine in London, NMOA lent a monumental bronze and wool sculpture, Malcolm X #2. One of series the artist created in honor of the slain civil rights activist, Malcolm x #2 was essential to the show's narrative and was a featured centerpiece of the exhibition.

NMOA was one of the first museums to translate exhibition labels, and from its earliest days circulated flyers in multiple languages in the community.

Welcoming You to Wonder

“In Greek mythology, Apollo was revered as the god of truth and prophecy, poetry, music, and the arts—an embodiment of creativity and intellectual endeavors. I hope this symbolism sets the stage to inspire thought and foster dialogue as it welcomes visitors to the museum.” Sanford Biggers

The transformation of NMOA’s grand entrance continued in 2023. Our Washington Street steps now invite every visitor to explore representation, history, and contemporary culture through the permanent installation of Apollo (Diptych) by sculptor Sanford Biggers in October. The majestic marble sculptures—one black and one white—feature the Greek god Apollo wearing an African mask and announce NMOA’s entrance, which has been renewed in recent years with a café, event space, and a popular Museum shop.

Ballantine House

The drum line of Newark's own Malcom X Shabazz High School marching band stirred the crowd on November 17 for the much anticipated opening of the renovated Ballantine House. The 1895 House now showcases the Newark communities who built it, created its interior decorative arts, and ran the household alongside the Ballantine family who owned it. Over 2.5 years the house has been painstakingly renovated inside and out, investing $12M in the last 19-century mansion still standing on Washington Street. We rebuilt exterior masonry; replaced rotting windows; repaired a leaky roof; upgraded interior and exterior lighting; and installed new railings, doors, and carpeting.

Galleries on the second floor now invite visitors to engage with contemporary art and explore the history of labor, craft, and decorative arts, alongside the economic and cultural forces that shaped early America and impact Newark today. You can hear the sounds of the house, play music recorded in Newark, see objects from the city's jewelry industry, and play a custom board game that mimics the art market and NMOA's collections. We were delighted to celebrate the landmark reopening with public tours, a Community Day, and a Beer in Brick City tasting.

THANK YOU Architectural Digest, The New York Times, and The Star Ledger.

“Artists are among our most courageous storytellers, often willing to say things that the rest of us may not be ready to hear. We should never be surprised when the first people we hear the truth from are artists.

And if artists are storytellers, then museums are their publishers. So it is the responsibility of museums to hear artists as they are telling truths, and make sure that those stories, those truths, are heard.

The Ballantine House, as we will now experience it, is a mirror showing us a reflection that many of us will be seeing for the very first time.”

Learning

Together

NMOA offers significant programs for Pre K-12 students in the arts, sciences, and the humanities as well as professional development for teachers. From field trips to school partnerships to district-wide work in Newark's grades 2, 4 and 6, NMOA has welcomed young people since its founding.

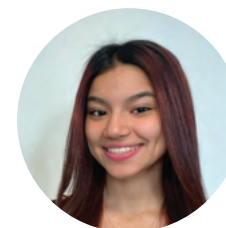

Camp NMOA organizes art integration and STEAM-based fun, imagination, and critical thinking over six weeks in the summer, made affordable through scholarships to dozens of families and flexible week-to-week registration.

Our In-Residence Educators create and lead programming ranging from drop-in workshops—including our MakerSpace where visitors play with the materials artists use to create artwork to hands-on courses for adults.

Our signature educational initiative is The Explorers Program. For 29 years NMOA has offered cohorts of 50 Newark high school students intensive four-year college and career preparation in art and science and education. Young people from across our neighborhoods bring passion, curiosity, and fresh insight to our work. They gain mentorship, experience in all aspects of our organization, career advising, and financial literacy. 100% of our Explorers are accepted to college, and we could not be more proud of their achievements.

Every year thousands of people learn with NMOA:

- 46,500 Public program attendants, 82.4% BIPOC
- 34,500 students (20,000 from Newark)
- 75 school districts
- 1,200 teachers
- 4,650 film attendants
- Family program participation increased by 35%
- Creative Play early childhood participation increased by 32%
- 1,800 Family First Saturdays
- 573 NMOA summer campers

“Before the program, I was a timid girl who was a team player and followed the crowd, but the program helped me get out of my comfort zone and become more outgoing and more of a leader. To be an Explorer means to set an example for future Explorers and bring my community together.”

Ashley Hernandez joined the Explorers Program during her first year at Science Park High School in Newark, and she is now a student at Rutgers University.

A Museum For All

As a significant community gathering place we partner with organizations to bring their messages and programming to our museum visitors. From blood pressure screenings to water quality, from animal welfare to voter registration, from record expungement to COVID boosters, NMOA worked alongside 75 organizations this year to amplify the strengths of our community.

THANK YOU to our incredible community partners!

The Newark Museum of Art was founded on the belief, radical among museums in 1909, that art and learning are for everyone. In 2023 NMOA's visitors reflect the diverse demographics of New Jersey, and attendance has returned to pre-pandemic levels.

The Museum's Board, staff, and volunteer corps also reflect the communities we serve. In 2023, the Museum shifted from traditional human resources to People & Culture—adopting an integrated approach to diversity, equity, access, and inclusion and new ways to measure those principles across our operations. Our Community Advisory Committee includes representatives in Essex County, who bring important voices to our exhibitions and public programs.

Did You Know?

NMOA was one of the first museums to establish children's educational programming both at the Museum and in partnership with local school districts.

Commitment to Partnership

NMOA is a world-class museum committed to being of and for our communities. The Museum serves as a cultural anchor and advocate, inviting new partners to our campus and extending our reach into our neighborhoods.

In February we worked with Newark's monument commission to dedicate Harriet Tubman Square, transforming Washington Park into a public tribute to enduring strength and freedom.

In 2023 NMOA worked with more than 650 artists, both established and under-recognized, to inform exhibitions, programming, and events. In September we partnered with Newark Arts to host the Newark Arts Festival's signature exhibition, Cross Cultural Perspectives, featuring 100 local artists, as well as 50+ artworks by young artists in the Culture Creators High School Visual Art Exhibition.

Did You Know?

NMOA coordinates with partners to offer free services on site, including an expungement clinic to help neighbors clear court records?

Celebrating Together

The May 2023 ArtBall dazzled. Our annual gala celebrated Newark’s creativity and raised critical support for the Museum. We recognized Karyn Olivier and Layqa Nuna Yawar with Artist Impact Awards and Judith Lieberman with the Arts Advocate Award.

THANK YOU to our visionary 2023 lead sponsor, Prudential, and all of our auction participants!

Signature public programs build community and offer new ways to engage with the Museum, its collections, and its spaces. Art After Dark brought the fourth Annual Pride Ball and Battle of the Wards to NMOA and fostered partnerships with LGBTQIA, LatinX, and Black business communities. Jazz in the Garden marked its 58th year. The Newark Black Film Festival (NBFF) partnered with local curators, introduced the Festival Pass, and doubled its 2022 attendance.

Did You Know?

The Newark Black Film Festival is the longest-running Black film festival in the nation, and in 2024 will celebrate 50 years of highlighting Black filmmakers.

“ We were blown away by the energy, enthusiasm, crowds, sense of community, performances and exhibitions. I particularly loved seeing the collection installations which were brilliantly and beautifully laid out. The interventions and reinterpretations were touching, varied, incisive and profound as were the displays in the Ballantine house— respectful of history yet excitingly and urgently revisionist! Congratulations! Your work is truly exemplary.

I look forward to visiting again soon.”
